

Introduction

Your information is very important to us and we look after it carefully in line with privacy and data protection laws, including the Data Protection Act 2018 and the General Data Protection Regulations. We've set out below more detail on what information we collect about you, how we use that information and your rights as a data subject.

In particular this Applicant Privacy Notice describes the categories of personal information we may process, how your personal information may be processed and how your privacy is safeguarded in the course of our relationship with you. It is intended to comply with our obligations to provide you with information about the Company's processing of your personal information under privacy laws. It does not form part of any contract between us and you.

We may update this Applicant Privacy Notice from time to time and will post any changes on our Career Website so it's a good idea to come back and read through it again, from time to time. This privacy notice was last updated on 25 May 2018.

The Company is committed to protecting the security of the personal information you share with us. In support of this commitment, we have implemented appropriate technical, physical and organisational measures to ensure a level of security appropriate to the risk.

Who is the Company?

Any reference to "we", "us" and "our" and "the Company" is to the Twofour Group, part of the ITV plc group of companies. We are known as the "data controller" and you can contact us at privacy@twofour.co.uk for more information about how we process your data, including how to exercise your rights as a data subject.

The Company (or relevant associated company) will be the data controller of your personal data. In addition, data processing may be undertaken by other companies within the ITV plc group of companies and the processing of your personal data will be subject to or governed by those companies' privacy policies.

How does the Company collect data?

The Company collects and records your personal information from a variety of sources, but mainly directly from you. You will usually provide this information directly into our systems during the recruitment process.

In addition, further information about you may come from recruitment agencies or other third parties for example, references from a previous employer, medical reports from external professionals, tax authorities, benefit providers or where we employ a third party to carry out a background check (where permitted by applicable law).

Where we ask you to provide personal information to us on a mandatory basis, we will inform you of this at the time of collection and in the event that particular information is required by the contract or statute this will be indicated. Failure to provide any mandatory information will mean that we cannot carry out certain HR processes, for example, we may not be able to proceed with your application.

What information is the Company processing and why?

Personal information means any information describing or relating to an identifiable individual, such as name, address, age, contract details, health data, photos for identification and promotional purposes, career history etc. Additional information that we may process on applicants includes:

- Name and contact details
- Right to work information
- Employment history, qualifications and CV
- Interview and assessment data
- Vetting and verification information
- Diversity data (such as ethnicity, disability, sexual orientation)

- Criminal record where required and subject to applicable laws.

This personal data is used to process your job application and to make a decision regarding your candidacy for a particular role, including whether to shortlist you for interview, conducting any interview and selection process and, if successful, processing an offer of employment.

There are occasions where we receive information (your right to work, contact details & employment history) from third party suppliers such as recruitment agencies, which we will use to process your application, for a specific job.

Where you provide information identifying yourself as having a disability, as recognised under the Equality Act 2010, we will be using your data to ensure that all candidates with a disability, who meet the minimum requirements of the role, will be invited to interview in accordance with our Disability confident status, and to make any reasonable adjustments to the recruitment process.

You can withdraw your application at any point. If you wish for your details to be deleted please email hr@twofour.co.uk.

Special categories of Personal Information

To the extent permitted by applicable laws the Company may also collect and process a limited amount of personal information falling into special categories, sometimes called “sensitive personal data”. This includes information relating to such matters as racial or ethnic origin, religious beliefs, physical or mental health (including details of adjustments or accommodations), sexual orientation, criminal records and information regarding criminal offences or proceedings.

This information will only be processed where data protection law allows this using a specific lawful justification, under one of the following bases where the processing is necessary:

- where explicit consent has been given;
- where the processing is necessary;
 - for the purposes of carrying out the obligations and exercising the rights of you or the Company in the field of employment law, social security and social protection law, to the extent permissible under applicable laws;
 - for the purposes of the assessment of your working capacity;
 - to protect your vital interests or of another person where you are physically or legally incapable of giving consent (for example in exceptional emergency situations, such as a medical emergency); or
 - for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims; or for the purposes of identifying or keeping under review the existence or absence of equality of opportunity or treatment between groups of people specified in relation to that category with a view to enabling such equality to be promoted or maintained.

Please click here for examples of processes using special categories of sensitive information.

We may seek your consent to certain processing which is not otherwise justified under one of the above bases. If consent is required for the processing in question, it will be sought from you separately to ensure that it is freely given, informed and explicit. Information regarding such processing will be provided to you at the time that consent is requested, along with the impact of not providing any such consent. You should be aware that it is not a condition or a requirement to agree to any request for consent from the Company.

Where consent is given, it may be withdrawn by you at any time.

Personal Information relating to criminal convictions and offences will only be processed where authorised by applicable laws, for example. In certain limited cases, and depending on the nature of the role for which you are applying, a criminal record check may be carried out on recruitment where authorised by applicable laws.

In general, the processing of your personal information is necessary to perform any future contract between you and the Company and for compliance with legal obligations which the Company is subject to. The processing is also necessary for the purpose of the legitimate interests pursued by the Company, except where such interests are overridden by your interests or fundamental rights and freedoms.

Please click here for the full list of processes that use your personal information, including the purpose and the lawful basis of each process. We may undertake certain processing of personal information which are subject to additional Privacy Notices and we shall bring these to your attention where they arise.

We do not use any of your personal information to make automated decisions.

Who has access to my data?

Your personal information can be accessed by or may be disclosed within the Company on a need-to-know basis to:

- Human Resources team members;
- Off-screen Talent Managers

- Those responsible for administering, managing or making decisions in connection with your application with the Company or involved in an HR process concerning your relationship with the Company;
- System administrators and system maintenance.

We may provide links to third party websites or applications, widgets or RSS Feeds. These third parties may have their own privacy policies and/or terms and conditions of use. We recommend that you read these before using any such services.

Your personal information will not be used or passed to third parties for marketing or any other.

Personal information may be shared with certain interconnecting HR systems. Data contained in such systems may be accessible by providers of those systems, their associated companies and sub-contractors. In addition, we may share personal information with national authorities in order to comply with a legal obligation to which we are subject. This is for example the case in the framework of imminent or pending legal proceedings or a statutory audit.

How long do you keep my data?

We retain your personal information only so long as it is required for purposes for which it was collected, whilst keeping it as up-to-date as possible and making sure that irrelevant or excessive data is deleted or made anonymous as soon as reasonably practicable.

Your personal information will be stored and deleted after 4 years plus the remainder of that calendar year. If you wish to have your information deleted prior to this date, please email us at privacy@twofour.co.uk.

Please see the Retention Schedule found listed on our website for further information.

What rights do I have and how can I use them?

In law you are the 'Data Subject' and you have several rights that you can exercise over your data such as the right to access, correct and request to delete your personal information. From 25th May 2018 you have some additional rights e.g. data portability, restricting the processing or objecting to it if it was done under legitimate interests.

You also have the right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority, in particular in your country of residence (e.g. the Information Commissioner's Office in the UK), if you consider that the processing of your personal information infringes applicable law.

For more information on your rights and how to use them please see below, or contact privacy@twofour.co.uk.

Access to my data

You can request access to the information we hold on you and we will also tell you;

- why we are processing it;
- who we are sharing it with;
- how long we will be keeping your data;
- the source of the information, if it was not collected directly from you;
- if we are using your data for automated decision making or profiling.

If you are making a request for a copy of your personal data that we are processing, please be as specific as possible as this will both help us to identify the information more quickly and provide you with a copy without any undue delay.

Rectifying inaccuracies

If you feel the information we hold on you is inaccurate, you can ask us to correct or update it.

Right to be forgotten

You can also request that we erase your information, although that might not always be possible if doing so means we cannot perform our contract with you, or we have a legal obligation or legitimate interest to keep the data. We will explain the consequences of erasing your data.

Restrict the processing

If you feel we are processing your information unlawfully or with inaccurate data, you can ask us to restrict processing. Where Personal Information is subjected to restriction in this way we will only process it with your consent or for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims unless we have your consent. If the processing is restricted we will continue to store the data.

Object to the processing

If you disagree with any legitimate interest or public interest we have relied upon to process your data, you can object to the processing. We will then stop processing the data unless we can demonstrate a compelling legitimate ground that overrides your rights, or the processing is required to establish, exercise or defend a legal claim.

Data Portability

The data that you provided to us is portable, so you can request to receive it in a commonly used format and request that we transmit it to another data controller. We have produced a standard format of commonly used employee data for this purpose.

Make a complaint

We are committed to safeguarding your data and upholding your rights, but if you feel we have not done that, please contact us at privacy@twofour.co.uk. Additionally you have the right to complain to the relevant supervisory authority, which in the UK is the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO).

Please contact privacy@twofour.co.uk if you want any of the information above or want your rights further explained.
